

SAINT PETER'S NET

JESUS SAID TO PETER, "FOLLOW ME, AND I WILL MAKE YOU FISH FOR PEOPLE."
MATTHEW 4:19

From the Rector

Dear Members and Friends of St. Peter's,

Yesterday I received on Whatsapp a short message comparing our life to a train journey with its stations, changes of routes and accidents. I found this meaningful as we begin another year. Many passengers we knew as family and friends got off the train and left us this past year, and many new ones got on as fellow passengers on this journey. Many leave a permanent mark or vacuum in our lives, and many when they leave, we hardly notice. This journey is full of joys, sorrows, fantasies, expectations, hellos and goodbyes, and how we treat our fellow passengers and make them comfortable is what is good and remarkable. A mystery on this journey is that we do not know when we ourselves are going to get off, meaning we cannot wait till tomorrow to be good to others. Tomorrows are not guaranteed. Yesterdays are gone. All we have is today, now, the present.

Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist and inventor of TNT, read his own obituary in the local newspaper which mistook him for his brother who had died, "Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, who died yesterday, devised a way for more people to be killed in a war than ever before. He died a very rich man." It had a profound impact on him, and as he did not want to be known as someone who profited from his invention of efficiently killing more people in war. He gave the profits from his invention to initiate the awarding of prizes to people and organizations for fostering peace in the world. He had a chance to correct himself from the mistakes of his past. As many of us won't get a chance to see our own obituaries in black and white, perhaps we can visualize or fantasize how we would like to be known and remembered. Now is the time to make the necessary changes in the way we live, move and have our beings today.

This January marks the 10th anniversary of our labor together in God's ministry at St. Peter's. It has been a great privilege for me to serve as your rector and co-worker. As I look back over the last years of our ministry, I can say without a doubt that we have been experiencing the presence of Jesus in our walk like the disciples did on their way to Emmaus. In many ways I am an outlier and stranger, yet you took me in as your spiritual leader. Many of you have invited me into your family and confided what is going on in your intimate and spiritual lives, and taken me in as part of your family. I thank God for each one of you and for St. Peter's, the center of our corporate life. I admire your vision for the future, your courage to step out of your comfort zone, and your willingness and faith to go where you would rather not go and do things you would rather not do. As we reflect on and thank God for our past years together, let us think about how as a church we have brought joy, happiness and meaning to both members of our church as well as the people we serve in our community. Let us as a worshipping community continue to be relevant in addressing the peace and justice issues that matter to our larger community and the world.

Deacon's Roundtable

The last week of December emphasizes the paradox we face in our Christian lives. The week begins with the always inspiring and uplifting Christmas Eve service to help us celebrate the Feast of the Incarnation—the birth of our Savior Jesus Christ. This is a paradox in itself—just think—the Savior of the world, born in a backwater town, to homeless parents, with an ox's feeding trough for His crib. God's Holy Angels pronounce His birth. He is worshipped by the poorest of the poor (the shepherds) and the richest of the rich (the Magi). He is almost immediately made an exile from His own country because of the avarice, greed and fear of one old feeble ruthless puppet king (Herod).

The paradox continues with our liturgical calendar. First we commemorate St. Steven the first deacon and martyr of the new religious sect that was started by the Babe grown to manhood; the person we confess to be the Son of Man and Son of God.

The next day we celebrate the life of St. John the Apostle and Evangelist; the person who was closest to Jesus and took the Blessed Mother as his own. St. John was the only apostle to live through the persecutions of the early church and to die a natural death.

Finally we celebrate the Feast of the Holy Innocents; those boy children of two years and younger who fell to the sword of Herod's henchmen that the Son of God might live to carry out His Father's mandate to bring all of humankind to Himself.

In his humanness, Jesus lived the paradox—He set the example. He has not asked us to do more (nor could we) than He has done for us.

The saving paradox for us is not only the Babe in the ox trough, but that the Babe grown to manhood (at the expense of others), was hanged on a cross for our sins, and then resurrected to the fullness of life with the Father from whom we are guaranteed the forgiveness of the sins that crucified Him.

Let us take for our own the collect for December 28 (The Fest of the Holy Innocents) that it may help us to reflect on the paradoxes that face us in our daily lives. "We remember today, O God, the slaughter of the holy innocents of Bethlehem by King Herod. Receive, we pray, into the arms of your mercy all innocent victims; and by your great might frustrate the designs of evil tyrants and establish your rule of justice, love and peace, through Jesus Christ our Lord, who lives and reigns with you, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever. Amen." (BCP p. 238)

Blessings in Christ's name,

Deacon Joe

What is Our Brand? Take the survey!

The Branding Committee of Saint Peter's Church was created in order to understand and publish what may be called the "essence" or "brand/image" of St. Peter's church. To accomplish these goals, we have engaged a professional consultant who has guided us in the creation of a short questionnaire.

This questionnaire was recently distributed electronically and in paper copies. It is our intention that every person who has a relationship with St. Peter's has the opportunity to share his or her experiences by answering this questionnaire.

Please complete one copy of the survey (in either paper or computer form). The questionnaire will take only a few minutes to complete, it has approximately a dozen questions. Your expectations, perceptions and experiences of this unique parish church will be greatly appreciated. All of your responses will be anonymous.

Thank you for helping us to discover our brand.
